

Flicks on 5th returns to Technology Square

The popular outside film series begins June 6

"Tell me five things about yourself, four of them true."

"Man, I've got two questions for you, what do you do and how do you do it?"

These are quotes from two of the films slated for this summer's Flicks on 5th free, outside, summer film series at Georgia Tech's Technology Square.

In its third year, Flicks is expanding its seating to make room for more people.

"In our first year [2005] we had approximately 3,600 people at seven movies," said Rich Steele, director, Student Center.

"In our 2006 season, our attendance jumped to approximately 8,000 people for the same number of movies.

"We had more than 1,700 at one movie this past year!

"With good weather and the great movie line-up we have this year, we could have even more people and we're making room for them."

The Flicks movie screen will be placed along 5th at Williams Street, allowing people to view the movies from 5th Street and the 5th Street Bridge.

"Williams Street will be closed at 5th Street and 5th Street will be closed between Spring and Techwood for people to sit in the street and watch the movies," Steele said.

The rear projection screen allows viewing from both sides with primary seating along 5th Street in front of the merchants and secondary seating along the bridge.

Sponsored by Georgia Tech merchants and groups [see list], Flicks is also part of the Student Center Programs Council Movie Committee.

"Flicks is our only summer event," said Toyo Okanlawon, chair, Student Center Programs Council Movie Committee.

"And it's a great one. We reach the entire campus plus visitors, people in Midtown and students from nearby schools.

"I have friends from Georgia State and Georgia Perimeter College who come to Flicks."

Planned for a diverse population, this year's movies range from comedies to dramas and even a musical.

"We'll have free popcorn during the movie [while supplies last]," Okanlawon said.

"And we recommend everyone come out and make an evening of it.

"Eat at one of the restaurants, shop at the bookstore, get a pedicure, just have fun with friends."

The movies are on Wednesdays beginning June 6 (not July 4) and are shown rain or shine at 9 p.m. (dark).

"We wanted to make sure the selection [of movies for Flicks on 5th] was broad, a wide variety," said Toyo Okanlawon (senior, Chemistry), and chair, Student Center Programs Council Movie Committee, seen here at her busy Student Center desk.

There are limited seats; guests are encouraged to bring chairs and blankets and please no coolers, umbrellas or pets.

For more information, visit the Flicks web site, www.flickson5th.com or call the Georgia Tech Student Center at 404-894-2805.

News Bulletin

Rosalind R. Meyers
Associate Vice President
Auxiliary Services

It's summer and Auxiliary Services is cleaning parking decks, readying the North Avenue Apartments, reviewing its dining menus and welcoming guests to campus through our Conference Services.

Conference Services

Many college campuses have a conference services program that brings groups to campus, using facilities that are not as busy during the summer because there are fewer students on campus.

Celebrating its tenth year, Georgia Tech Conference Services is booked solid for the first time which means every available date and residence hall room is reserved for a group.

Some of our Conference Service guests will blend into campus.

Teach for America, for instance, brings more than 600 people to campus, most of whom are new college graduates.

What is Teach for America? From its web page, Teach For America described itself as "the national corps of outstanding recent college graduates of all academic majors who commit two years to teach in urban and rural public schools and become leaders in the effort to expand educational opportunity."

Other groups will stand out like the Universal Cheerleading Association (UCA) and its groups of middle and high school cheerleaders.

Help us welcome these groups to our campus.

For a list of this year's conference service programs, visit the Conference Services web at www.conference.gatech.edu.

GT Dining Meal Plans

GT Dining has a variety of meal plans. While mostly students buy the plans, they are available for everyone, faculty and staff included.

For those who budget, meal plans are a good alternative to daily spending.

Meal plans are paid at the beginning of the semester.

There are two plans, the Casual Diner Plan (75 meals per semester) and the West Side Plan (60 meals per semester) for people who eat a limited number of meals on campus.

Each plan comes with BuzzFunds that can be spent at campus locations where the BuzzCard is accepted, including Barnes & Noble @ GT.

Rosalind R. Meyers, associate vice president, Auxiliary Services (above), signing a Georgia Tech banner, reminds students, faculty and staff to welcome the approximately 10,000 Conference Service guests to campus this summer.

Both plans are all you care to eat and chefs prepare the food.

Daily at Woodruff Dining Hall, a customer can enjoy homemade pasta with Marinara or Alfredo sauce with a choice of fresh vegetables and two types of meat, garden salad, a variety of hot and cold sandwiches, chef's hot choice, desserts, iced tea, soft drinks and more. Brittain Dining Hall has a similar selection. The average meal price for this array of food is less than $7.50 for the Casual Diner Plan and a little more for the West Side Plan.

For Fall Semester, students and those who eat more than one meal on campus per day should consider the Unlimited Meal Plan that includes "unlimited" visits to both dining halls, $125 in BuzzFunds, and $100 dining card (available fall semester). Meal plan information may be accessed at the BuzzCard web site, www.BuzzCard.gatech.edu and for up-to-the-minute information on what's going on in Auxiliary Services, visit www.ImportantStuff.gatech.edu.

Decorate residence hall rooms!

Students looking to decorate their residence hall rooms need look no further than Barnes & Noble @ Georgia Tech.

"We have everything from area rugs to curtains and all sorts of organizers to make students' residence hall rooms feel like home," said Jerry Maloney, director, Barnes & Noble @ Georgia Tech (B&N@GT).

"Barnes & Noble @ Georgia Tech is a one-stop shop for Georgia Tech students," Maloney said..

Students can save money on their textbooks by purchasing from Barnes & Noble @ Georgia Tech's large supply of used textbooks.

Then, students can walk across to the B&N@GT Technology Center, buy their computer loaded with software, both meeting the requirements for Georgia Tech classes and again saving money.

Then, pick up a couple pairs of flip-flops from the B&N@GT Home Furnishings shop and maybe even get a Georgia Tech afghan.

And, get ready to hit the books - just like home!

Holly Kennedy (senior, International Affairs and Modern Language), looks at apartment rugs in the Home Furnishings section of Barnes & Noble @ Georgia Tech.

Parking on campus

Parking & Transportation's annual on-line parking registration is underway with the deadline approaching on Saturday, June 30. Register at www.ApplyParking.gatech.edu.

Looking for options to the annual parking registration? Here are a few.

SmartPark

SmartPark is a discounted parking program for commuters who drive to campus three days or less per week.

SmartParkers pay a $25 annual registration fee and then $5 via their BuzzCard each time they enter one of the three SmartPark lots.

The annual SmartPark registration fee must be purchased at the Parking Office, 875 Hemphill Ave., N.W. Atlanta, GA 30332. SmartPark BuzzCard money is the same as any BuzzCard money and may be deposited onto BuzzCards on-line at the BuzzCard web (www.BuzzCard.gatech.edu), at campus value transfer stations or at the BuzzCard Center.

SmartPark lots are:

- Technology Square Parking Deck (E81)
- Visitor Parking Area 3 (Ferst Drive across from Health Services and the Instructional Center)
- North Deck (W23)

SmartPark parking is available between the hours of 5:30 a.m. and midnight, daily, no overnight parking.

Visitor Parking

There are four visitor parking areas on campus with attendants and two with electronic payment only. None allow overnight parking.

- Parking Area 2, outside Student Center, 75 cents per half hour up to a daily maximum $10, no charge 15-minute drop-off rate.

- Parking Area 3, Ferst Drive across from Health Services and the Instructional Center, 75 cents per half hour up to a daily maximum $10, no charge 15-minute drop-off rate.

- Parking Area 4, Ferst Drive at the intersection of Ferst and State Street, 75 cents per half hour up to a daily maximum $10, no charge 15-minute drop-off rate.

- Technology Square Deck (E81), adjoins the Georgia Tech Hotel & Conference Center, $1 per hour up to a daily maximum $10.

- Parking Area 6, 5th Street across from Barnes & Noble @ Georgia Tech, $1 per hour, electronic payment only via BuzzCard, credit card or cash.

- Parking Area 1 (Burge Deck), ground level, North Avenue, alongside the Alumni/Faculty

Parking Area 6 is located on 5th Street across from Barnes & Noble @ Georgia Tech. Quick and economical, this parking lot is $1 per hour and accepts BuzzCard, credit card or payments in cash. No attendant at this lot.

House. Park in a numbered space and indicate that space number at the pay station. The pay station is to the immediate right upon entering the deck. The cost, $1 per hour, may be paid via credit card or cash (no pennies or dimes accepted).

If all visitor lots are full, a visitor day pay pass may be purchased at the Parking Office for $8 and used in ungated parking lots dependent on space availability.

Metered Parking

Metered Parking is available throughout the Georgia Tech campus. Malfunctioning or broken meters (meter will flash "Failed") are considered "No Parking" zones.

Vehicles parked next to broken or malfunctioning meters will be cited accordingly.

Academic Area

Metered parking is enforced 8

a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday-Friday.

The fee is $1 per hour with a two-hour maximum (1 nickel = 3 minutes, 1 dime = 6 minutes, 1 quarter = 15 minutes).

Locations: Ferst Drive at the Student Center and behind Student Center deck; Ferst Drive at the Campus Recreation Center; and 4th Street at the Library.

Residential Area

Metered parking is enforced 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

The fee is $1 per hour with a two-hour maximum (1 nickel = 3 minutes, 1 dime = 6 minutes, 1 quarter = 15 minutes).

Locations: Bobby Dodd Way at Techwood Drive; Cherry Street at North Avenue; McMillian Street at Sixth Street; Turner Place at the Undergraduate Living Center; Curran Street at Turner Place; 8th Street; and Holly Street at 10th Street.

Viola Brown, (Registered Pharmacist), supervisor, Stamps Health Services Pharmacy, swipes a student's BuzzCard, accessing the students' pharmacy records and automatically sending any charges to the cashier, saving everyone time.

Health Services updates its technology

Stamps Health Services is adding to its technology, saving students and Health Services' staff time, space and thereby money.

The Pharmacy has a new computer software system. An electronic pad allows students to sign in for prescriptions and that, coupled with a BuzzCard swipe, protects students' privacy and quickly accesses students' records.

The BuzzCard swipe also sends any charge information to the cashier who is located outside the Pharmacy. Students can quickly pay any medication charges and be on their way.

The new system makes prescription filling faster too.

Pharmacists scan the medication, print the label, store the student's prescription refill information in a fluid motion.

The system also comes with a phone-in service so that students can call in refill requests and pick up with little waiting.

Next up - digital medical records and digital radiography (x-rays).

Seattle's Best & Einstein Bros at the Biotech Quad

The Quad Cafe opening fall semester

Does a hot, grilled turkey sandwich on whole wheat bread with melted pepper jack cheese oozing onto the sides paired with a steaming cup of Seattle's Best Coffee make your mouth water?

Does the aroma of Einstein Bros chocolate chip bagels baking find you reaching for your BuzzCard to buy one.

Would you enjoy an array of pastries, salads, fruit smoothies, espressos, soups, other made-to-order sandwiches and perhaps ice cream?

What about comfortable seating, a view of Midtown Atlanta, and just a good place to meet colleagues, friends and maybe a new research associate?

Does any of this sound appealing?

What if it is all located in one standalone building on the Georgia Tech campus which previously offered food prepared off site?

If all of this sounds appealing, get ready for the soon-to-be Quad Cafe.

Scheduled to open fall semester, this two-story structure will house two national brands - Einstein Bros Bagels on the first floor and Seattle's Best Coffee on the second floor.

"In fact, the Quad Cafe's Seattle's Best is the nation's first implementation of a Seattle's Best Coffee concept on a college campus," said Rich Steele, director, Student Center.

"There are colleges that serve the coffee, as we do, but this is the first full cafe."

The Quad Cafe is the first restaurant on the North Campus and will be a major food upgrade to the area.

"It will be a gem to the biotech quad," Steele said.

Anyone walking through the Student Center Commons during the morning can attest to the mouth-watering smells coming from Einstein Bros. Bagels. The same will be the case when Einsteins opens in the Quad Cafe.

Convenient for the expected 2,500 people on the North Campus, the Quad Cafe could also be a destination for anyone wanting fresh, delectable foods and drinks combined with a setting conducive to conversa-

At press time, the Quad Cafe was still under construction. This artist's rendering shows the glass design and its positioning in the center of the Biotech Quad. tion and business discussions.

"These new restaurants will offer a space for faculty, staff, and students in the biotech region of campus to meet and collaborate on ideas while enjoying some great food," said Shequita Barnes, marketing manager, GT Dining

"We are excited about the opportunity to add two new locations that are reputable national brands here on campus."
